A DEMOCRATIC COUNTRY

One of our ancestors fresh from the Old Country grew enthusiastic over his newly-acquired freedom. "And, by faith," he said, "it's a great country; every man can do as he pleases, begorrah, and a man who won't do it ought to be made to!"

Up in New Jersey the potato growers are putting the federal government on notice that they intend to ignore the law which seeks to regulate the growing and marketing of potatoes. "We are going to grow as many as we please," they say, "and sell them to whom we please." Which is exactly the attitude the farmers of the south are being urged by certain leaders to assume with regard to the growing and selling of cotton.

All of which sounds like pure democracy, and is perfectly good doctrine, except that no farmer can do either of these things. Any farmer, urged by governmental authority, can try to grow as much cotton or as many potatoes as he pleases, but he fails in that as often as he succeeds. Then he cries out for help from his government. Any farmer may likewise try to sell his cotton and potatoes to anybody he pleases at whatever price he pleases, but since "it takes two to make a bargain," he also frequently fails in that attempt. And then again he cries out for help. Every man wants the other man regulated, but rebels against regulation for himself.

Efforts at crop control are intended primarily for the good of the man who produces the crop. When his crop is restricted and a higher price thereby made possible, the farmer is helped and the man who buys his produce is hurt to exactly that extent. If the government did right in fixing a price limit below which cotton and potatoes should not fall, the power to do this was necessarily coupled with the regulation of the production of these crops.

That man who insists upon his right to grow as much as he wants to, and to sell it for whatever he wants to, is asking more than is possible. If given the right of unlimited production, then he would find himself confronted with whatever price the consumer was willing to pay him. Regulation of production makes possible a regulation of price; unregulated production necessarily means unregulated price.

And this is a free country, to be sure. Every man ought to be given the right to play the fool if he wants to, but no man ought to be given the right to hurt his neighbor while playing the fool.

That is the theory of crop and price regulation; it has proven sound so far in the New Deal.

We are of the opinion that if Mussolini sends an army into Ethiopia he will find that it is no mere cotton picking job that he has embarked on.

MEETING THE CHALLENGE

Time and again during recent years the public has challenged the railroads to improve service in many ways—and every time the rails have met the challenge, as Dr. C. S. Duncan, economist, Association of American Railroads, recently pointed out.

The people want speed. Every year witnesses faster travel between major points—and developments in the direction of diesel and electric power, coupled with streamlining, promise much for future achievement.

They want safety. According to the National Safety Council, railroads have one fatality for each 400,000,000 passenger-miles—as compared with a fatality for each 11,000,000 passenger-miles on our highways.

They want comfort. Few homes or hotels are as comfortable as the modern, quiet-running, air-conditioned, perfectly balanced railroad car.

They want dependability. They have it now—interruptions in railroad service, no matter what the climate or the operating conditions, are very rare.

They want adequacy. The capacity of railroad carriers is not half used today. They have abundant tracks, equipment, terminal facilities and a network of lines embracing every part of the nation.

They want economy. Railroads provide the cheapest available form of mass transportation, both for persons or goods, comfort and service considered.

So it goes, all down the line. The rails are not only meeting the public's needs and wants—they are anticipating them. Railroad progress is never ended, and the march toward better, more flexible, more inexpensive service knows no halt.—Industrial News Review.

IN THE NAME OF JUSTICE

Recently the supreme court of the state of Washington rendered an epochal decision.

Washington and Oregon passed a law a year or two ago whereby the state utility regulatory commissions were empowered to assess against utility companies the costs of investigations for rate-making purposes. Other states have considered following these examples.

Now the supreme court has decided, in a biting decision, that the act is unconstitutional. The decision pointed out that the act made it possible for regulatory authorities to initiate and conduct an investigation after an order against a utility company "until a particular utility was destroyed." And the justices added, "We see no reasonable protection from persecution."

This decision is important because it is in the interest of justice, of the American spirit of fair play. Rate-making investigations initiated by the state are primarily designed to benefit consumers. They are a purely public function—and they should be paid for in the manner of public functions, by all the people. There is no justification for an act which forces the stockholders of a company to pay out hundreds of thousands of dollars to meet the cost of an investigation, perhaps hastily demanded, which can eliminate the small return they are permitted by law to earn on their investment.

During the past year, there have been a number of decisions, by state and federal courts alike, of exceptional importance. These decisions have affirmed and reaffirmed American principles and constitutional rights—they have prevented the gravest kinds of injustice, and perversion of taxing and legislative power. This new decision, by the supreme court of Washington, stands high on that distinguished list.—Industrial News Review.

HAPPY FEATURES AT ATLANTA FAIR

EXPOSITION TO OPEN SUNDAY, SEPT. 29 AND CONTINUE ON THROUGH OCT. 6

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 17.—Southwestern Fair and Cotton States Exposition, Atlanta, Sept. 29 to Oct. 6, will feature evening entertainment which will be a combination of Broadway night life and Coney Island fun all wrapped in one bundle.

First and foremost in the nocturnal attractions will be George Hamid's Winter Garden Revue, featuring the charming Catherine Behny and her coterie of Broadway beauties in the finest musical show which has ever been seen at any fair in the country.

Close comedians, rapid fire dancers, classic terpsichoreans, and girls, girls—beautiful girls—will make the Hamid-Behny production, abetted by Cerveone's Syncopeers band a throw-back to the days when Zeigfeld was in his prime. Fitting into the routine will be spectacular hippodrome and circus acts.

Once one has seen the Southeastern Fair night show in front of the grandstand, there are the massive combined carnival attractions of the fair's own Funway with the Royal American Show, "world's brightest midway," Bishop Curley's metropolitan night Rendezvous, "The Plantation Club," with its Cotton Pickers orchestra, and all the known rides from a slow trip inside a donkey to a fast motivation in one of the new speeding contraptions.

Behind the back-drop settings of the Winter Garden Revue will be the shimmering waters of Lake Lakewood, providing as unique a setting as any production has ever had.

Despite the fact that Hamid's fast motion picture featuring extravaganza is known as a "three hour" show, Southeastern Fair patrons can attend for a very nominal price. It will be produced all eight nights of the fair.

The state of Ohio is going to pay a claim of $600 for horses stolen by the Confederate raider, General Morgan, seventy-one years ago. We hope the AAA doesn't go back as far as 1864 to pay for the pigs that were roasted in the campfires.

ASK FREE GINNING ON STORM COTTON

DAMAGE TO GEORGIA CROP AMOUNTS TO AN EMERGENCY WORTHY OF RELIEF.

Valdosta, Ga., Sept. 13.—Pointing out that the losses to South Georgia cotton farmers from the recent hurricane were just as much an emergency as the losses in Florida, Paul Walker, manager of the Southern Cotton Oil Company plant in this city, has written Internal Revenue Collector W. E. Page asking that federal relief be given them by suspending the ginning tax.

In his letter today to Collector Page, Manager Walker says that 30 per cent of the cotton was in the bolls when the storm struck South Georgia and that this cotton was ruined, entailing a tremendous loss to the growers.

The Southern Cotton Oil Company operates a ginning in this city in connection with its seed crushing plant, and Manager Walker is in a position to have a thorough knowledge of the condition of the crop, both before and after the storm. He points out that such of the cotton as may be picked is damaged to the extent that it will not be accepted as collateral for federal loans and that it is already selling on the market at 5 and 6 cents a pound.

Mr. Walker strongly urges that the cotton growers have suffered as much material damage as Florida people, with the exception of loss of life, and are just as much in need of emergency relief.

Local buyers are taking a small amount of the damaged cotton at a low price for the purpose of offering it to the general market to determine its real market value. He says that it can not be used for the manufacture of cloth; therefore, in the face of such losses they may be forced to shut down because of lack of cotton on which to keep the spindles and looms running.

As little as 15 years ago simple remedies you find indispensable today were sold in bulk from dirty, dust filled bags and barrels. The advent of Puretest changed all that—for in Puretest Pack- ages there was more than a measuring stick of dependability. Certain standards of quality were set up which then and today are far above requirements. Ask your Rexall Druggist about Puretest.

ARMY OF WOMEN AID DEMOCRATS

THIRTEEN THOUSAND FEMININE NEW DEAL SUPPORTERS WILL ENTER CAMPAIGN.

Washington, Sept. 14.—Mrs. James H. Wolfe, chairman of the women's division of the Democratic national committee, said today a feminine brigade of more than 13,000 New Deal supporters is ready to take the field this fall for extensive campaigning.

This was her reply to recently announced plans by Republican women to hold nation-wide rallies on constitution day to expound the constitution.

"We see no reason to worry about the constitution," Mrs. Wolfe said in an interview. "It takes a vote of the people to change the constitution, something that seems sometimes to have been forgotten. And history shows the Republicans have been the principal constitution changers."

Announcing an intensified autumn speaking campaign looking toward the 1936 women vote, Mrs. Wolfe outlined the "reporter plan" which she termed unique in political annals, as the background of feminine party strategy.

"Women are organized into groups, with each member acting as reporter for one of the major recovery agencies. Each reporter studies laws, read reports until she is so well informed on the plans and program of her agency she can answer open forum questions, speak at political meetings, or discuss the New Deal over the telephones."

Besides the "reporters" working on their home grounds, Mrs. Wolfe said the party would put into action a wedge of women division officers and regional directors.

Notice is hereby given that Ogeechee Junior High School will open for the fall term on Friday, Sept. 27th. TRUSTEES.

EIGHTY MILLION FOR COTTON CROP

VALUE PER BALE LOWER, BUT PRODUCTION IN GEORGIA IS UP 60,000 BALES FOR YEAR

The total value of the 1935 cotton crop in Georgia will be approximately 80 million dollars, economists of the College of Agriculture estimate. This is about the same as last year, although the return per bale will be somewhat lower, it was stated, since the current estimate of production this year is about 60,000 bales greater than the ginlings in 1934.

Under the AAA adjustment plan this year the average acreage reduction for the state was 33 percent as compared with the 38 percent in 1934. This caused a decline in the rental payments, and also permitted a larger production of cotton, it was pointed out. Unless there is an advance in prices of lint or seed the total value of the crop this season will be no greater than the previous crop last year, economists said.

The greatest change in the valuation of a single crop was that of tobacco, which jumped from $6,000,000 in 1934 to $14,000,000 in 1935. This is attributed to the increase in production, amounting to 112 percent, with a slight advance in price.

Value of the peach crop this season is placed at $6,000,000 as compared with $5,500,000 in 1934. Early maturity of the crop which permitted growers to supply the opening market is credited with the advance. The production was nearly the same both in 1934 and a five-year average from 1928 to 1932 of 36,320,000.

The probable production of peanuts was placed at 6,500,000 pounds this year as compared with 6,100,000 pounds in 1934 and a five-year average in 1928 to 1932 of 5,940,000 pounds.

The indicated production of peanuts for 1935 as reported by the bureau of crop estimates is 354,250,000 pounds. The total crop amounted to 297,600,000 pounds, while the 1928-1932 average production is 239,150,000.

The estimate of hay production is placed at 473,000 tons in 1935, as compared with 414,000 tons in 1934. The five-year average from 1928 to 1932, inclusive, was 365,000 tons.

Only two crops—pears and Irish potatoes—showed a decrease in production in 1935 as compared with 1934 in Georgia, the report of the crop estimates board said. The commodities are of minor importance, comparatively, however.

Home economists of the College of Agriculture said that the conservation of canned foods would probably be as great as in the state as in any previous year. Practically every county in the state has at least one canner, and some have as many as five it was stated, and all have been busy throughout the summer.

Reports from county agents and observation of College of Agriculture specialists indicate that the state has achieved probably the best balance in production this year in its history, and with an increase in the food and feed requirements now ready for harvest, and a substantial growth in the value of cash crops, they expressed themselves as highly gratified over the outlook.

Free Allotment For Domestic Purposes

Cotton farmers will be allotted 110 pounds of tax-free cotton to be used for domestic purposes, according to announcement received by County Agent Byron Dyer from C. A. Cobb, chief of cotton section.

Bulloch county farmers desiring to obtain some cotton for home use are urged by the farm agent to hold back enough seed cotton for this purpose. Mr. Cobb warns that under no circumstances can any part of this 110 pounds or any article manufactured from it be sold or exchanged for anything of value.

Mr. Cobb states that the necessary forms for making application for this tax-free cotton will be available in the farm agent's office before October 1.

The regular September meeting of the local American Legion post was held at the court house Tuesday evening, at which time plans for the new year were discussed and new officers were installed. Officers installed were as follows: Commander, Dr. Hugh E. Arundel; vice-commander, Remer L. Brady; adjutant and finance officer, H. P. Jones; chaplain, T. E. Davies; sergeant at arms, C. W. Hagan, service officer, E. L. Poindexter; historian, R. Herbert Kingery.

GREAT CROWD HEAR ROOSEVELT

PRESIDENT WILL SPEAK IN ATLANTA DURING THANKSGIVING HOLIDAYS.

(By Georgia News Service)

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 24.—The largest audience ever assembled in Georgia is expected to welcome President Roosevelt when he speaks at Grant Field in Atlanta during the Thanksgiving holidays, which he customarily spends at Warm Springs.

Announcement that the president will open his Southern campaign for re-election with his Atlanta address has met with such enthusiastic state-wide response that an attendance of 100,000 is considered a conservative estimate.

Mr. Roosevelt's promise to speak in Atlanta during the Thanksgiving holidays was made on receipt of an invitation from Senators George and Russell, representing the entire Georgia delegation in congress. The date is to be fixed later.

The Atlanta Constitution, which made the first announcement of the president's plan to speak in Atlanta, has reported pledges of co-operation by railroad and bus companies in handling the crowd; co-operation of the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce and other organizations in perfecting plans for the occasion.

Numerous motorcades from many sections of the state are being planned, the first one to be announced being organized by E. D. Rivers, speaker of the house of representatives. All Atlanta papers are devoting daily front page stories to plans for the Roosevelt visit.

The report that Governor Talmadge would officially welcome President Roosevelt, in his capacity of governor and Democratic committee-man, has brought a number of protests on the ground that it would be unfitting for the chief executive to be welcomed by a man who has attacked his policies.

Fitzgerald Plans for Tri-County Exposition

Fitzgerald, Ga., Sept. 24 (GPS).—With three counties participating—Wilcox, Ben Hill and Irwin—the 40th anniversary of the Union Soldiers' Colony will be celebrated at Fitzgerald October 7-12 with a colorful Tri-County Exposition.

Forty years of progress and development in Wilcox and Irwin counties, the parent counties of the Union Soldiers' Colony, are now embraced in Ben Hill county, of which Fitzgerald is the capital.

All the older citizens of Irwin and Wilcox counties will remember how the Union veterans, with their families, began to arrive from the north, east and west, passing through the town of Fitzgerald, to the land of the promised land—Irwin county, according to the Fitzgerald Leader, weekly newspaper, of which Laddor Gelders is editor.

"It wasn't long before the sawmills began to cut slabs for the veterans to build temporary homes," Editor Gelders said. Colony authorities allotted the ground, homes were built and fields were plowed. Like a page from the Arabian Nights, a city—Fitzgerald—soon came into being, springing like a nymph from a virgin forest.

The colony had its "ups and downs," the editor relates, but eventually it succeeded, benefiting a big section of South Georgia. It is that time Georgianians had hesitated to move into "what was virtually a wilderness of the early nineties."

FAIR IN ATLANTA TO OPEN SUNDAY

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITS TO BE AUGMENTED BY PROGRAM OF ENTERTAINMENT.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 23.—Southeastern Fair and Cotton States Exposition, reflecting the agricultural, livestock and poultry interests of Georgia, Dixie and twenty-nine states of the Union, will open Sunday, September 29, and continue for eight days through Sunday, October 6.

Supplementing the fundamental fair projects will be entertainment, amusements and thrills scheduled on each day and night of the exposition to include three days of AAA auto races, the Western Frontier Exposition and California Frank's Wild West Rodeo, the Hopi Indian Village, George Hamdi's Winter Garden Revue, the Cotton States Museum, five days of tractor races, two days of Lucky Teller's Hell Drivers' Races, the Cotton States Night Club, and a full time session of the Royal American show carnival.

The fair will open Sunday with auto races featuring Bill Cummings, national AAA driving champion and 1934 Indianapolis Speedway winner, Chet Gardner, Billy Winn, Ken Fowler, Billy De Vore, Vern Crawford, Floyd O'Neill, Pete Craig, Wheeler Braden, Milt Marion and many others.

During each day of the week a special state day has been set aside to which state officials of sister commonwealths have been invited, as well as a state Cotton Queen, from which a Cotton States Queen will be selected Saturday to rule over the Cotton States Exposition on the final day of the fair. The event this year commemorates the fortieth anniversary of the Cotton States and International Exposition held in Atlanta in 1895.

According to President Mike Benton, this year's fair will be the banner exposition of the forty years of the annual event's existence.

The German government is publishing praise which it got from Columbia University professor. That propaganda won't do it much good in this country.

Care in Breeding is Poultryman's Problem

The lack of good breeding in the local flocks is the major problem that poultrymen in this section are facing, declared J. H. Burrell, St. Louis expert here Tuesday to make the 100 poultrymen. Regardless of the efforts of the poultryman, he has no chance to make money from a flock unless the breeding is in the flock to capitalize on these efforts, Mr. Burrell said. Feeding a balanced ration and flock management are important items in profitable raising, he added.

L. F. Cregg, Tampa, discussed the outlook for poultry and poultry products. According to his interpretation of the information available, the outlook is very bright.

Arthur Cannon, extension poultry specialist of the College of Agriculture, outlined the plan to improve the breeding stuff and the methods to be employed in ridding the flock of certain diseases.

Graphon Lohrhop, St. Louis expert traveling with Mr. Burrell, warned local poultrymen about purchasing the "sure-kill" remedies, and urged them to put more labor into their sanitation program and less money. He said that if the poultrymen in this section would practice sanitation program labor alone they could control the various diseases and parasites without any financial worries.

GEORGIA EDITORS TO VISIT THE FAIR

FINE PROGRAM BEING PLANNED WITH BARBECUE FOR SCRIBES ON FRIDAY.

(By Georgia News Service)

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 24.—A big barbecue, with President Mike Benton of the Southeastern Fair Association as host, is one of the many features planned for the entertainment of Georgia editors and their families on Press Day at the fair Friday, October 4th. The fair opens on September 29th and continues through October 6th.

All visiting editors are to register immediately upon their arrival at the fair association offices. Gates will open on Press Day at 8 a. m. and registration will begin at 9 o'clock at which time visiting editors will be furnished with official badges admitting them to the various attractions.

Following registration, the visiting editors will be left to their own devices to visit the various exhibits until 11:45 when they will assemble at the plantation club for the barbecue.

At 1 o'clock, immediately at the close of the barbecue, a daring parachute jump will be staged for the delectation of the editors. Grandstand shows and free acts will begin at 2:30 to be followed by the races. After the races the editors will visit the Western Newspaper Union, Frank C. Gilreath, of the Gilreath Press Syndicate, and L. K. Starr, of Georgia News Service, publisher of Editor's Forum.

The reception committee to welcome visiting editors consists of Hal Stanley, executive secretary of the Georgia Press Association, and editor of Editor's Forum, official publication of the Georgia Press Association; Iambdin Kay, director of WSBI; Bill Breitenstein, publicity manager for the fair; R. L. Edgerton, of the Western Newspaper Union; Frank C. Gilreath, of the Gilreath Press Syndicate, and L. K. Starr, of Georgia News Service, publisher of Editor's Forum.

Friday, October 4th, also will be school day at the fair. This fair will be at the rate of 10 cents a gallon to all syrup over 100 gallons produced from the 1934 crop which was sold. If the cane was sold on a tonnage basis the gallonage will be computed at the standard conversion rate of 22 gallons of syrup per ton of sugar cane. This 10 cents a gallon is the amount which is estimated is necessary to bring the average return from syrup of the 1934 crop to the parity price of 32 cents a gallon.

The benefit payments for 1935 will also be in an amount to bring the approximate parity return, but the exact amount will depend upon the price of syrup from this year's crop. The 1935 payments will be made on a slightly different basis from those for 1934 in order to make the syrup program correspond as closely as possible to the Louisiana sugar cane program. For 1935 the benefit payments will be made on 88 percent of the amount of syrup sold in 1934. This corresponds to the 88 percent of the base production of Louisiana sugar cane producers upon which they will receive 1935 benefit payments. In 1935, however, producers may market up to 100 percent of the amount of their 1935 marketings.

AAA PROGRAM FOR SUGAR CANE CROP

PRODUCTION CONTRACTS TO BE DISTRIBUTED SOON THROUGH COUNTY AGENTS' OFFICE

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration has announced that the 1935 production adjustment program for farmers who grow sugar cane for syrup or a commercial basis has been approved by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, and that the contracts to be offered to farmers have been forwarded to the state directors of extension for distribution to the county agents.

Sugar cane for syrup is grown mainly in Louisiana, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida, Arkansas, Texas and South Carolina, but contracts will be available to producers in all states. The program supplements the general sugar cane adjustment programs which have been put in effect in Louisiana and Florida. Producers co-operating in the syrup program will receive benefits comparable to those made to co-operating producers in the Louisiana sugar cane program.

Under the contract, co-operating farmers will agree to have no larger acreage in sugar cane growing in 1935 than they harvested in 1934 and to sell no more syrup or to sell no more sugar cane on a tonnage basis from the 1935 crop than they sold from the 1934 crop. Contracting producers will receive benefit payments for the two years, 1934 and 1935.

The benefit payment for 1934 will be at the rate of 10 cents a gallon to all syrup over 100 gallons produced from the 1934 crop which was sold. If the cane was sold on a tonnage basis the gallonage will be computed at the standard conversion rate of 22 gallons of syrup per ton of sugar cane. Poultrymen Urged Have Flocks Tested

Poultrymen who plan to sell eggs to hatch and want their flocks tested for pullorum disease, now have an opportunity to take advantage of the Georgia Breed Improvement Supervisory Board.

The "stained-antigen rapid whole-blood agglutination test" will be the official method of testing for pullorum disease in Georgia this year. County Agent Byron Dyer urges all the poultrymen who wish to have their flocks tested to make arrangements with the hatcheryman who is to buy their eggs, or with one of the official testing agents, Frank Smith, of Statesboro, or one of the testing agents, having completed a special training course at the College of Agriculture, and has been officially appointed. Mr. Smith is the only approved agent in Bulloch county.
